
Your First Apple Event

If you are completely unfamiliar with the Apple Event Manager, you should start with the following sections:

About the Apple Event Manager gives a general description of the Apple Event Manager.

Using the Apple Event Manager covers the different actions you can perform using the Apple Event Manager.

If you have a general idea of what Apple Events are and what the Apple Event Manager can do, you should read the following:

Apple Events, which describes the various levels of Apple Event support, details the steps that need to be taken in order to support Apple events, and gives an example of the use of Apple events.

Apple Event Types details the four categories of Apple events.

Receiving Apple Events describes the section that you should read if you want your application to respond to Apple Events sent by other applications.

Creating and Sending Apple Events describes the sections you should read if you want your application to create and send Apple Events to other applications.